

COMMUNITY!

Local access to community media benefits the community. BNN-TV provided information and/or programs not otherwise available on mainstream television. Individuals, groups and organizations, some, via the training received from Access, create and produce their own community programs/forums that informs, entertain and give a voice to a diverse community at large with a wide range of perspectives and viewpoints. Also, via the training, many community residents have acquired skills that have helped them land a job or further their careers.

This correspondence, though not intended to influence, it is intended by the author to deliberately educate; to educate the reader on the importance of not stripping the community of a viable resource.
